An Unforgettable Video-clip Story

Recently I participated in a contest of online video-clip making, which was themed “Model Students in New Era”. This activity was set to encourage our creativity, spread positive life values and find good role models around us. Many of us gave an active response to this event.

I shot a video, telling the story of our monitor, Li Mei. I showed her experiences in volunteering in my community, helping the classmates with their studies, and organizing a learning group on Chinese culture. I was delighted when my video was selected as one of the winners.

The contest enriched our campus life. What's more, It was through the model students' stories that I developed a stronger sense of social responsibility. I am grateful that the school organized this event.

附：听力原文

(Text 1)

M: I thought the flowers of this plant should come out at this time in March.

W: No. To see the flowers, you still need to wait three months.

(Text 2)

M: Peter and I have decided to go hiking in the nearby countryside this afternoon. Do you want to join us?

W: Go hiking under such a burning sun? I think I'll pass.

(Text 3)

W: You don't drink cola? Are you still on a diet?

M: No, but I've got a toothache. I'm afraid I won't be able to drink anything sweet for a while.

(Text 4)

W: I heard that you've got a new job. Congratulations!

M: Thanks. Though I'll have to work overtime and the salary is almost the same, at least I'll have more chances of traveling around the country.

(Text 5)

W: Morning, Mr. Smith. Miss Lee telephoned and she asked if you would be able to meet her this afternoon.

M: Sorry, but I'll have a meeting then. Please tell me her phone number and I'll explain it to her right now.

(Text 6)

M: Where to, Miss?

W: The Museum of Natural History, please. And could you stop by some fast food restaurant on the way? I'd like to buy some takeout.

M: Sure thing. A tourist, I guess?

W: No, I was born here. Why?

M: Well, you don't have our accent.

W: Oh, that is probably because I've spent my last 5 years in Britain. I studied drama at the University of Winchester there, you see.

M: Okay. Welcome back to the Big Apple.

(Text 7)

W: What's the matter, Sir? You look pale.

M: I feel dizzy and weak. And I'm having this pain in my ear.

W: Are you often traveling by plane?

M: No, this is the second time.

W: That's right. It's normal if you don't often take the plane. It's just because of the lower pressure.

M: What should I do about it?

W: You may feel much better if you chew some gum.

M: OK, thanks. I'll give it a try. By the way, how long will it take to get to the destination?

W: The plane will land in Ontario Airport three hours later. Enjoy the rest of your flight.

(Text 8)

M: Nice day, Kate. It seems you've invented some new desserts.

W: Hi, Mr. Fry. Yeah. Some creative ideas just came up in my mind, so I decided to put them into practice.

M: Good for you. So, any recommendations?

W: Sure. You might want to try this lemon pie. I've added something spicy in it. It has a lovely strong flavor. The strawberry cake is worth trying, too.

M: Sounds nice. How about this little green one?

W: Oh, that's the green tea cupcake. It tastes refreshing.

M: Okay. I want the lemon pie and this green tea cupcake. How much should I pay?

W: The pie costs 4 dollars and the cupcake 3 dollars.

M: Okay. Here's the money.

(Text 9)

M: I'm on the beach to talk to Mel Flynn, an Australian teenager who spends most of her free time underwater. Hello, Mel.

W: Hi.

M: How did you become interested in diving?

W: My parents are both biologists, they thought maybe I would be interested in land animals. But when I was old enough, I became fond of diving, so I could take a closer look at all the amazing things living underwater.

M: When did you start to dive?

W: I learned to swim when I was three. But it was seven years later that I started diving. But then I couldn't go deeper than twelve meters.

M: Did you feel scared?

W: Not really. The teacher told me which dangerous fish to avoid and as long as I left them alone, I wouldn't be in danger. And I was never too far from the dive boat.

M: And what do you do now?

W: I joined a group of teenagers who help scientists with their research. I like working with them since I've learned so much already by watching the scientists at work. We are volunteers, but many of us are planning on becoming biologists on sea animals in the future.

(Text 10)

W: This summer I took part in a really interesting project called One-Day Clean-up, whose aim is to make our environment clear. I heard about it from my neighbors who used to take part in a year ago. I thought it would be fun and persuaded some of my cousins to join me. Most of the people there were teenagers. Over half of the people there were from China, like me, but there were also people from Thailand, Australia and the USA. We had to pick up all the rubbish that we could find on the seaside. It has all made me realize how important it is for everyone to be aware of the environment. So I'm determined to get my family to recycle as much as we can. It'll be worth it if we can make our seas safer for all those beautiful sea animals. So, if you'd like to join me taking part in this Day next year, it'll be on January 11th. The focus on that day will be on getting rubbish out of rivers.
